Street bond roadwork shifts to Welch Road

FARMERS BRANCH | Monday, December 7, 2015 ~ Progressing through the City, the Farmers Branch Street Bond Program has begun resurfacing operations on Welch Road from LBJ to Spring Valley.

In order to maintain two-way traffic while this road is being resurfaced, the construction will progress in three phases. First, will be the northbound, easternmost lane.

The construction process will consist of milling the asphalt surface, making any necessary concrete repairs and overlaying the surface with new asphalt.

Phase two will include the southbound, westernmost lane using the same process.

Traffic will be shifted to the outside lanes for the center, or third phase, after the outside lanes are completed.

The entire project is anticipated to take approximately three to four months, weather permitting. Alternate travel routes, using Midway Road to the west or Inwood Road to the east, are recommended.

The project is part of a $23.5 million bond program to improve streets, approved by voters in 2014.
